

Status on Backordered Items:

Backorder Update 01/05:

All backordered items purchased during our holiday sales have been received and are on their way to your home!

Backorder Update 12/28:

We have received the backordered uniform items and Corporate Clothier is starting to ship them out. They are processing by the date ordered but all should be shipped by early next week.

Backorder Update 12/21:

Our uniform shipment has cleared the customs inspection. Our shipment is on its way to our distribution partner. We are expecting early January delivery to our customers.

Backorder Update 12/20:

We received an update that our uniform shipment was received at port on December 17. Our shipment was randomly selected for inspection by customs. We are still hopeful that backordered items will be delivered in January. Thank you for your continued patience and understanding during this shipping delay.

Backorder Update 12/3:

In June, as we watched our inventory being impacted by record growth and sales, we placed orders to ensure we had plenty of stock for Black Friday. Due to global shipping issues, the ship didn't arrive until mid-November and was not immediately unloaded. As soon as we received confirmation of this delay, we announced there would be inventory issues and encouraged early shopping, even offering discounts to do so. Many of you took advantage of these savings. The most recent updates suggest the ship will be unloaded in time to deliver backordered items to your home in January. Backordered items will be processed by the date ordered.
